HAS THE EYES OF AN OWL

But the Farm and Features of a Man—A Representative of the Capital Encounters a Strange Midnight Wanderer.

A Nocturnal Ramble About Frankfort in this Strange Company.

As a member of the Capital staff was returning from a social call, at an early hour, a few evenings ago, he was accosted by an unseen individual, whose voice seemed to emanate from a dark recess just around the angle at the northern extremity of the old wooden bridge. The moon had hardly risen, and the few beams that it should have generously shed on benighted humanity were, for the time being, obscured by the banks of drifting clouds, and the overhanging hills that skirt the city on all sides. As the voice from out the inky darkness smote on his ear, the solitary scribe awoke with a start from his reverie of sweet girl graduates and tete-a-tetes in the drowsy firelight, and came to a halt that would have done credit to the first sergeant of a prize drill corps.

"Can you tell me," repeated the voice, "whether you met a gentleman just beyond the bridge, wearing a dark cloth coat and a tall silk hat?"

There was nothing alarming in the gentlemanly tone of voice, and recovering his assurance, the scribe replied that he had not met any pedestrian answering to the description. In fact it was so dark that he wouldn't have known it if he had met anyone, and it puzzled him to think that anyone else possessed powers of vision acute enough to discern the texture of a garment or the dimensions of a hat on such a night.

"Excuse me," said the still unseen stranger, "I am sorry to trouble you. Pretty night, isn't it?"

"It's pretty dark," replied the scribe.

"Dark! Why it seems quite bright to me. I've been confined to the house nearly all day, and was just out for a little stroll."

"Do you mean to say you can distinguish objects about you on a night like this?" replied the newspaper man, beginning to feel a superstitious fear of encountering such a gifted adversary at the end of a dark and lonely bridge.

"Certainly, as plainly as you can by day-light. By the city clock it is now just twenty-three minutes to ten. I also see a couple just entering the far end of the bridge. It does not appear darker to me than early twilight does to you. The scribe whose curiosity was thoroughly aroused, insisted that his time was unlimited, and apologizing for his inquisitiveness begged the stranger to explain to him the possession of this remarkable faculty of his visual organs.

"First give me a light," said the stranger, and although the newspaper man could only discover the faintest outline of his form, yet be knew instinctively that the stranger had drawn closer to him. Complying with the request be struck a wax taper, and by its bright light discovered for the first time the features of the man before him. It was a pale, melancholy face that was disclosed, smoothly shaven, with a pair of large, dark eyes, and handsome, classic features. There was little suggestiveness of the highwayman or the foot-pad in the firmly chiseled mouth and the open brow that the reporter saw before him, and he felt that he could trust the owner to the fullest extent. Having lighted his cigar, first offering the scribe one, he now replied to the question:

"Certainly, I've no objections at all to explaining to you why I can see almost as well in the dark as ordinary eyes can in the daytime. If you've no objections, join me in my walk."

"I am on a quiet visit here at the home of my friend, Mr. ——, but that's in confidence. My eyesight became very much affected two years ago by a severe spell of sickness, and I have never recovered from it sufficiently to go out of a darkened room, save on very cloudy days. I came here to spend a few quiet weeks, and have only been out of the house after night since my arrival. In fact my confinement during the day necessitates my taking a great deal of exercise after dark. I often walk the streets, or about the country, for over half the night. Excessive brilliancy dazzles my eyes. No perception of the object results from the impression, and in fact, injury to the structure and sensibility of the retina follows The retina, you know, is the immediate organ of vision, and receives the rays of light and transmits the visual impressions by the optic nerve to the sensorium. All rays beyond those necessary for perfect vision absorbed by the pigment layer of the choroid. To be clearer, this answers the same purpose as the black anterior of optical instruments. The iris shuts off the rays from the circumference of the lens, and the pupil contracts or expands according to the brilliancy of the illumination of the object. In a bright light my eyes present a curious appearance.

The affection of my eyesight, following my sickness, was of a very remarkable nature. It has puzzled the most eminent occulists of the country. In my case a remarkable depth of the organ has resulted. The sclerotic has been powerfully strengthened by cartilage, and for a time I was actually devoid of lachrymal glands—in fact couldn't shed a tear. The pupil of my eye showed a tendency to assume an oblong shape, like that of a cat. Wait a second—some lady has lost a shawl-pin."

Stooping down he picked up from the pavement a small object, which proved to be a clasp for pinning a cloak or shawl. "From these changes in the organic structure of my eyes," resumed the stranger, "has resulted in the remarkable powers of vision that I possess. If I had a diagram convenient I could readily demonstrate to you how the structure of my eye now enables me to accomplish this. It is on the principles applied in the manufacture of certain kinds of telescopes used at sea after night. The shape and adjustment of the lenses, etc., bring out objects seen through them with great distinctness."

"I suppose," asked the reporter, "that you are enabled to see many things that escape the notice of other people in your nocturnal rambling?"

"Indeed, I am. In fact I have to be very guarded in what I say in ordinary conversation. My assertions would never be taken for the truth in many instances, and from the fact that my observations are so often confined to things not seen by the public, I can recount many facts that would seem improbable. Night veils the secrets of a city, and throws the mantle of darkness over thousands of the acts of mankind which could not bear the light of revelation. Since I have been walking to-night my vision has become much clearer. I can see every part of the city distinctly from where we stand. While we were walking I saw at least a dozen couples promenading who did not dream that mortal eyes could see them. I see every night front-gate tete-a-tetes and clandestine meetings that would cause Dame Grundy to wag her tongue to death. No man's actions or whereabouts can be safe from me if I should choose to act as a spy on him. We passed to night a certain residence where a loving couple were bidding each other good-bye at the door. I could unfold a tale that I expect would harrow up many a romantic soul in this little city, if I were so disposed—But I expect you are tired."

Their walk had extended to beyond the city limits, and during that time many things were said by the reporter's strange companion not embraced in the above. It was so dark during the entire time that the reporter had to frequently check the rapid strides of his companion, for fear of bodily injury through encountering unseen obstacles in their pathway. After they had retraced their steps, and were about to conclude their brief, though interesting acquaintance, the gentleman kindly invited the Capital man to call on him at the house of his host, and to feel at perfect liberty to repeat the nocturnal excursion they had just enjoyed at any time. This the newspaper man promised to do, and at an early day he will present to the readers of the Capital another chapter on this remarkable personage who has the face and form of a man and the eyes of an owl.—Capital.

Candor.

Even in the most honest minds there are depths of deceit. Society reposes on a thin crust of convention, underneath which lie fathomless possibilities of crime. Friendship, however close and dear, is not free from its reserved, unspoken beliefs, more or less suppressed opinions. The man whom you indignantly defend against any accusation brought by another, so confident are you in his unshakable integrity, you may yourself momentarily suspect of crimes far exceeding those which you repudiate. Indeed, I have known sagacious men to hold that perfect frankness in expressing the thoughts is a sure sign of imperfect friendship; something is always suppressed and it is not he who loves you that "tells you candidly what he thinks" of your person, your pretensions, your children or your poems. Perfect candor is dictated by envy or some other unfriendly feeling, making friendship a stalking horse, under cover of which it shoots the arrows which will rankle. Friendship is candid only when candor is urgent—meant to avert impending danger or to rectify an error. The candor which is an impertinence never springs from friendship. Love is sympathetic.

Are You Tired of Being Sick?

We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches. you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases It is pure, sure and pleasant. 45 4

Alden's Literary Revolution.

John B Alden's Literary Revolution, though, possibly, not making so large a "noise" in the world as three or four years ago when its remarkable work was new to the public, is really making more substantial progress than ever before. A noticeable item is the improved quality of the books issued. Guizot's famous "History of France." not sold, till recently, for much less than $50,00, is put forth in eight small octavo volumes, ranking with the handsomest ever issued from American printing presses, including the 426 full page original illustrations, and is sold for $7.00. Rawlinson's celebrated "Seven Great Monarchies of the Ancient Eastern Worlds" is produced in elegant form, with all the maps and illustrations, reduced in price from $18.00 to $2.75 These are but representative of an immense list of standard works, ranging in price from two cents to nearly $20.00, which are set forth into a descriptive catalogue of 100 pages, and which is sent free to every applicant. It certainly is worth the cost of a postal card to the publisher, John B. Alden, 393 Pearl Street, New York.

Prickly Ash Bitters is an unfailing specific for all complaints arising from a derangement of the functions of the liver. It purifies the blood and infuses new life into the invalid. Pains in the side, general uneasiness, loss of appetite, headache, billious attacks, &c., &c., are sure indications that a corrective is needed. Prickly Ash Bitters is especially adapted for these complaints. It arouses a torpid liver to action and restores it to a healthy condition. 45 4t

POLITICS AND POWDER.

What it Costs to Run a Campaign—Opinion of a Fireworks Maker.

"Five million dollars!"

"Yes, sir, five million dollars, of which two millions are spent for fireworks and three millions for uniforms, etc., every Presidential campaign."

Thus said Mr. James Palmer, the Rochester fireworks maker, to our reporter's inquiry.

"The average spent in off years for fireworks is over one million dollars."

"Do we import the bulk of our fireworks?"

"No, sir, we import nothing but firecrackers. We make the rest in this country. There are only ten fireworks establishments in America."

Upon invitation of superintendent Frederick Fitz Fichner, the reporter inspected the Palmer establishment not without some fear and trembling at first. When the superintendent said he had blown up twice, the reporter furtively asked:

"Is not this business a little risky?"

"Yes, I suppose it would be so considered by outsiders, but I have encountered greater dangers than any I find here and don't feel concerned."

"I don't quite catch your meaning?"

"Well, I have been in this business many years and the constant though unconscious nervous strain has caused greater suffering than the explosions I have "taken!" Many a day I would be very dizzy, and everything would get dark. At other times I could scarcely breathe from choking sensations. Then my appetite left me and I grew thin, weak and lifeless. I was drowsy by day and wakeful by night. My side pained me, my back ached, my limbs burned, I bloated fearfully, and one leg got paralyzed. For ten months I suffered desperately, and two prominent physicians gave me up for a dead man, sure."

"You don't look it now?"

"No, that's so, but it was a fact, just the same. When I found out my trouble, I at once resorted to Warner's Safe Cure and a dozen bottles put me in possession of the best health I ever expected to enjoy, and I was pronounced incurably sick with bright's disease. It is the most wonderful medicine in the world."

"Indeed. You are a fortunate man. Is there any falling off in the fireworks business this year?"

"Not at all. On the contrary it grows more popular every year, and this year we have done an extraordinary business. The American people are getting quite as fond of display as the mercurial Frenchman, and they manifest it by rockets and volcanoes, political banner, campaign uniforms, etc. I reckon that $10,000,000 won't cover the incidental political expenses of a Presidential campaign."—Rochester, N. Y. Democrat.

Rockport's Ratify.

ROCKPORT, KY., Nov. 17, 1884.

Editor Herald:

If there is anything Rockport Democracy can do better than another, it is to consummate an off-hand, unorganized, spontaneous jollification. Without preparation and scarcely with previous notice the unterrified with inspiration came pouring in from every corner to celebrate the triumph of principle over money, of right over wrong, and ratify the election of a man who never made a public faux pas, a man who regards his office as a public trust and an official as a public servant. Mr. Kinsolving, the coming orator, led off in a stirring, eloquent and patriotic speech, which most happily fitted the spirit prevailing. He rose above all cowardly gloating, extending the kindliest feelings towards the vanquished and exhibiting a representative Democratic spirit, which is as generous and noble in victory as it is valiant in defeat. Then followed the inimitable O. C. Valandingham, of Greenville, Ky., whose scholarly attainments and perfect mastery of our political history are so well known. His terrible arraignment of Jay Gould, "that d—n swarthy Jew, who as truly owns the people of America as the farmer owns his farm," is only surpassed by Shakspeare's Shylock. But his humorous disparagement of John Logan somewhat recoiled on himself when he confessed that Logan "beat him sparking Mrs. L. and routed him." W. D. Coleman was so utterly chuckfull he could not make a speech and begged off.

The fire works, managed by Messrs. Fogle and Broughton, were a complete success.

Nothing occurred to mar the night's enjoyment, except that some drunken hoodlum interrupted Mr. Valandingham's speech by calling him a liar and cheering for Blaine. No one cared for his Blaine proclivities, but his abject destitution of ordinary respect for the speaker and audience as well as self was an outrage upon common decency, and he may thank his stars and the general good feeling prevailing for not getting knocked down about ten times as fast as seven men could pick him up. It was an insult as much deplored by Republicans as Democrats. If he has a spark in his soul above the brute, his own sense of the outrage will perhaps be sufficient punishment.

Mr. Brison Southard was with us. No better Democrat lives than Brison. Indeed, it is reported that he said "Jesus Christ never made so good a Democrat as I."

All in all, in a small way, the meeting was a very large success, and was creditable to the town and neighborhood.

The Post Master was observed next day "camping on the enemy's trail." He is dying slowly by inches. Oh, so awfully allfired hard I pity him, though he has a host for company.

The good Lord! What a rousing business on 'Salt River' this blessed 'minit.' Dense fogs hang over London like a pall; but what would this be compared with the black cursed stifling smoke from the fuming mud-scows steaming up to the head of navigation. I don't know whether I'd rather have a hotel now on "Salt River," or wait till Cleveland begins to overhaul the books and set up one in Canada. There's going to be an immense hotel business done in Canada in the spring. I have been thinking what a picture the G. O. P. would afford just now. What a doleful countenance, with its deep lines of balked hopes, disgust and chagrin, a picture of the very butt-end of despair. I fancy it would look like Bill Arp's face when he innocently mistook his first piece of cod fish for fried potatoes: one crunch of the beastly morsel and he paused for the gravest and most earnest reflection. He could fairly hear its vociferous infernal odor. He reflected only a moment, then in mingled disgust, alarm and despair he helplessly bawled out to his wife, "Something's dead in the bread, Mandy, sure's your'e born."

It is gratifying to any lover of his country to see the universal rejoicing. These bonfires, kindled by millions of patriots all over the land, lighting up the bivouacs of the free and sending a glow of incense to heaven, mean there is yet life, vigor love of liberty and eternal vigilance in the people, which no power can awe, or no money corrupt. In every city, town and village in this broad land Democratic thunder peels out upon the air laden with shouts of patriotic glee.

Last Friday night, at Hartford, I attended the greatest political demonstration ever had in this county. The shades of Jefferson and Jackson inspired every heart that beat, every throat that sent up its loud hurrah. But it is neither my intention or province to report this tempestuous out-burst of cyclonic joy. The duty falls to other and abler pens. But I cannot forego this chance to offer my warmest thanks in the most grateful manner for the many flattering notices of Simon Suggs at that meeting. A blessing upon each one of you. You can scarcely conceive how grateful I am and how much I desire to publicly acknowledge that gratitude, but while it was an occasion that would have inspired an idiot with the arts of Stentor and Demosthenes I could not have said one word, and I felt it was better to decline than disappoint you with a flat failure. Again I offer my sincerest thanks.

Hurrah for Burchard!

Pardon me, reader. This election has completely demoralized me. I could no more tackle a local item now, if it had no election in it, than I could swallow an ox. But I rather like that little "old, round, fat, oily man of God." He elected Cleveland, but he didn't go to do it. Somewhat subsided,

SUGGS.

Beaver Dam Notes.

Nov. 17th, 1884.

Editor Herald:

The agony is over. The count is ended, and the hopes of Mr. Blaine have gone where the wood-bine twineth. His Presidential aspirations, which have been his day dreams for twelve years, have vanished, and the bee which has so long buzzed in his bonnet has left with a sting. He can now return and finish his "Twenty years in Congress," for he will not have to add an addendum for his four years in the White House. The days of sectionalism have passed and with them such men as Mr. Blaine. The reign of the bloody shirt and of old war prejudices, we trust is at an end, for the people of this great country rendered a verdict on the 4th instant, consigning to oblivion these obnoxious articles, which was the principal stock on hand with the late nominees of the Republican party. When we take into consideration the obstacles to be overcome, the verdict has been the most decided one known in the annals of modern history.

The Republicans were fortified in their strongholds on plans suggested by a reign of twenty-four years' duration, with an army of office-holders two hundred thousand strong, whose positions under the government depended upon their activity to do dirty campaign work and their liberality in dividing their salaries for corruption funds. Not only this, but the greater number of the gigantic monopolies and corporations in this country, which had built up under the fortunes of the war, and which have been sustained by Republican legislatures, friendly to their selfish interests, have furnished amounts of their ill-gotten gains to a corrupt fund that has been used to foist upon the people men who would still favor this centralization of wealth and power. These, with the prejudices of the war and the ignorance of the colored race upon whom they have so long imposed, have been powerful obstacles to the expression of the peoples' verdict. But over all these things the people have triumphed and the sound is not an uncertain one. The lesson is a good one to all parties, and that is, that the American people demand men for high places whose personal and political records will bear inspection Let us all hope that the Democratic party will recognize the fact that the eyes of the American people and the world at large will be upon them, and that an honest administration, based upon the true principles of civil liberty, will bless the people, securing to all sections and to all classes equal rights and privileges.

Beaver Dam put on her Sunday clothes last Thursday night and had a holiday. Was looking for company and it came. Everybody and his wife was out to the ratification. The streets and the residences from the railroad to the school hall were illuminated with Japanese lanterns, and the hall was decorated with numerous flags and designs. The old Cleveland and Hendricks flag, which had floated in the breeze through the long campaign, was stretched across the back end of the hall, upon which was placed large pictures of the next President and Vice President of the United States. Cannons were fired at short intervals until the close of the exercises, which were heard as far as Rochester The artillery used however, was furnished by the blacksmith shop. The crowd was immense. Democrats came from everywhere. Some of the old stand-bys of Democracy from the county, such as Uncle Tom Maddox, Uncle Ham Barnes, Uncle Pole Hocker and Uncle John Oldham, who were Democrats, Mr. Editor, before you and I were born, were out and added dignity and interest to the occasion. Hartford sent out a large delegation. Republicans, too, were there and we think enjoyed the occasion. Nothing was said or done to give offense, but everything was done in decency and good order. Speeches were made by Hon. E. D. Walker, Judge C. W. Massie, J. Edwin Rowe, Esq., Capt. Henry McHenry and Hon. Jesse S. Williams. Prof. O'Flaherty and J. H. Weller were called for, but declined on account of the lateness of the hour. The speeches were patriotic, conservative and well-timed. After speaking, a considerable display of fireworks was witnessed by the crowd. Little George Berger, a Hoosier Democratic boy, has had his Cleveland and Hendricks flag up all summer on a high pole in his father's yard and on Thursday night he ran up his lantern, which continued to burn until the great company had dispersed. Our Indiana citizens are enthused over the carrying of Indiana by their favorite Hendricks.

But we will not forget our school in our enthusiasm over the ratification. The school hall was crowded on Wednesday night last at the meeting of the Literary Society. H. B. Kinsolving, Esq., was present and gave an entertaining speech on educational matters. The school, under the control of Prof. John O'Flaherty and Miss Nora Taylor, is flourishing and general interest is manifested. RURAL.

John Bright, in a long letter favoring free trade, argues that since its adoption by England the price of food and hours of labor have diminished, while wages have doubled. He says although trade in England is now unusually depressed, the depression is far greater in "protection" countries, like Russia, France and America He concludes by saying that the overthrow of the party of protection and monopoly in America may prove to be a great blessing, and when England and America have embraced the policy of free industry, the whole fabric of monopoly throughout the world will totter to its downfall.

THE HERALD.

JOHN P. BARRETT, - - EDITOR
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 26 1884.

CONGRESS will convene next Monday.

IT is a rainy day when Mr. Blaine gets left.

BUSINESS is reported to be better since the election.

THE South will show the Northern fanatics how much mistaken they are.

JOHN BUSH, of color, was hanged at Lexington, Ky., last Friday for the murder of Miss Annie Vanmeter.

THE Hawesville Democrat takes the cake for the largest rooster. It covered one whole page of the paper.

THE resolutions adopted by the Sulphur Springs Cleveland and Hendricks Club are in the right vein and hard to beat.

GOV. CLEVELAND says the negro shan't be hurt; so say the people. All reports about a reign of terror in the South are false and incendiary.

THE official vote of New York, was ended last week at Albany, and the following is the result. Cleveland 563,154; Blaine, 562,005; ST. John, 25,006; Butler, 16,751. Cleveland's plurality 1,149.

DANIEL MANNING, the great Democratic Chairman, has just been married. It's about time for the leading Democrats to begin to marry, if the Democratic party is to be kept sufficiently numerous to properly conduct a beneficent government.—Courier-Journal.

A REPUBLICAN orator in a campaign speech here last summer declared, "The dazzlement of public scrutiny has been thrown on James G. Blaine for 20 years; his every going in and coming-out has been carefully noted." But there is one ingress and egress of the Plumed Knight that the orator didn't dream of then and doesn't care to mention now, and is far more notable than any, namely: his going in at the big end of the horn in leafy June and coming out at the little in dank November.

M. H. DEYOUNG, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded last week by Adolph Speckles, a sugar planter of Hawaii, because he published articles in his paper offensive to Speckles. Four years ago his brother and partner was murdered by a man who had taken exceptions to something said about him in the paper. The Chronicle has always been an audacious, scandal-mongering, sensational paper, and has profited greatly by it pecuniarily. But after all such business seems not to pay.

IF the Courier-Journal and the newspapers in Central and Eastern Kentucky have not exhausted all the offices within the gift of President-elect Cleveland, we will nominate our worthy townsman, Hon. H. D. McHenry, for the position of Post-master General. Mr. McHenry is a member of the National Executive Committee, ex-Congressman, a lawyer of pronounced ability and much credit is due him for the favorable result achieved in the recent election. This is the position Mr. McHenry would have filled under Mr. Tilden had he not been cheated out of the Presidency. No gentleman would fill this Cabinet position with greater ability and honor to the people of the United States than Mr. McHenry.

Mr. Blaine's Speech.

MR. Blaine's recent response to the serenaders has excited much and various comment. It has met approval and disapproval, billingsgate and extravagant laudation. Some regard it as a high water mark of statesmanship, others as the angry snarl of a skunk cur.

THE Maine statesman is certainly not deserving of all the vituperation that has been cast at him since his nomination at Chicago. He is not a wretch and villain. Else he would not have made such a creditable and all but successful race; he would not have been so faithfully and enthusiastically followed where he was personally well known; he would not have held his own so long as he has.

He is a remarkable man. With his immense political talents and his literary venture, he is as great a man as these days and times afford, and his fame will be far incommensurate with his natural existence.

However, he is under a cloud just now. Many of the most influential and best men of his own party refused to support him because they thought he had not acted circumspectly in offices of high public trust and dignity. No great issues were raised in the contest. Mr. Cleveland's morality and Mr. Blaine's honesty were more debated than the Tariff or Civil service reform. And Mr. Cleveland was chosen.

Mr. Blaine's remarks about the South will do no serious damage. They are untimely and uncalled for, but not incendiary, we think. He meant them as a warning. He honestly believes the triumph of the Democratic party is a political misfortune,—and he is honestly mistaken.

His latest utterances are inconsistent with the charitable words in his letter of acceptance, and with a fine sentence that occurs in his book "Twenty years in Congress":

"New days bring new issues and old passions are unsafe counselors."

Mr. Blaine on the Result

On the evening of the 18th inst., at Augusta, Maine, a large number of Mr. Blaine's personal and political friends tendered him a serenade and an expression of confidence and admiration. In response Mr. Blaine said:

FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS:—The national contest is over, and by the narrowest of margins we have lost. I thank you for your call, which, if not one of joyous congratulations, is one, I am sure of confidence and of sanguine hope for the future. I thank you for the public opportunity you give me to express my sense of obligation, not only to you, but to all the Republicans of Maine. They responded to my nomination with genuine enthusiasm, and ratified it by a superb vote. I count it as one of the honors and gratifications of my public career that the party in Maine, after struggling hard for the last six years, and twice within that period losing the State, has come back in this campaign to the old fashioned 20,000 plurality. No other expression of popular confidence and esteem, could equal that of the people among whom I have lived for thirty years, and to whom I am attached by all ties that ennoble human nature to give joy and dignity to life. After Maine—indeed along with Maine—my first thought is always of Pennsylvania. How can I adequately express my thanks for that unparalleled majority of more than 80,000 votes?—a popular indorsement which has

and which has, if possible, increased my affection for the grand old Commonwealth; an affection which I inherited from my ancestry, and which I shall transmit to my children.

But I do not limit my thanks to the State of my residence and the State of my birth. I owe much to the true and zealous friends in New England who worked so nobly for the Republican party and its candidates, and to the eminent scholars and divines who, stepping aside from their ordinary avocations, made my cause their cause, and to loyalty and principle added the special compliment of standing as my personal representatives in the national struggle.

But the achievements for the Republican cause in the East are even surpassed by the splendid victories in the West. In that magnificent cordon of States that stretches from the foot-hills of the Alleghenies to the golden gate of the Pacific, beginning with Ohio and ending with California, the Republican banner was borne so loftily that but a single State failed to join in the wide acclaim of triumph. Nor should I do justice to my own feelings if I failed to thank the Republicans of the Empire State, who encountered so many discouragements and obstacles, who fought and who waged so strong a battle that a change of one vote in every 2,000 would have given us the victory in the nation. Indeed, a change of more than 5,000 votes would have transferred New York, Indiana, New Jersey, and Connecticut to the Republican standard, and would have made the North as solid as the South.

My thanks would still be incomplete if I should fail to recognize with special gratitude that great body of workingmen, both native and foreign-born, who gave me their earnest support, breaking from old personal and party ties, and finding in the principles which I represented in the canvass the safeguard and protection of their own firesides and interests.

The result of the election, my friends, will be regarded in the future, I think, as extraordinary. The Northern States, leaving out the cities of New York and Brooklyn from the count, sustained the Republican cause by a majority of more than 400,000—almost a half million; indeed, of the popular vote, the cities of New York and Brooklyn threw their great strength and influence with the solid South, and were the decisive element which gave that section the control of the national government.

Speaking now, not at all as a defeated candidate, but simply as a loyal and devoted American, I think the transfer of the political power of the government to the South is

A POLITICAL MISFORTUNE.

It is a misfortune, because it introduces an element which cannot insure harmony and prosperity to the people; because it introduces into the republic a rule of a minority. The first instinct of an American is equality—equality of right, equality of privilege, equality of political power; that equality which says to every citizen, "Your vote is just as good, just as potential as the vote of any citizen." That cannot be said to-day in the United States. The course of affairs in the South has crushed out the political power of more than 6,180,000 American citizens, and has transferred it by violence to others. Forty-two Presidential electors are assigned to the South, on account of the colored population, and yet the colored population, with more than 1,100,000 legal voters, have been unable to choose a single elector. Even in those States where they have a majority of more than 100,000, they were deprived of free suffrage, and their rights as citizens are scornfully trodden under foot. The eleven States that comprised had by the census of 1880, 7,500,000 of white population, and 5,300,000 colored population. The colored population, almost to a man, desire to support the Republican party, but by a system of civil intimidation, and by violence and murder, whenever violence and murder are thought necessary, they are absolutely deprived of all political power. If the outrage stopped there it would be bad enough; but it does not stop there, for not only is the negro population disfranchised, but the power which rightfully and constitutionally belongs to them is transferred to the white population, enabling the white population of the South to exert an electoral influence far beyond that exerted by the same number of the white people in the North.

To illustrate just how it works to the destruction of fair elections, let me present to you five States in the late Confederacy and five loyal States in the North, possessing in each section the same number of electoral votes. In the South the States of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, and South Carolina have in the aggregate 48 electoral votes. They have 2,800,000 white people and over 3,000,000 colored people. In the North the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa Kansas, and California have likewise in the aggregate 48 electoral votes, and they have a white population of 5,600,000, or just double the five Southern States which I have named. These Northern States have practically no colored population. It is therefore evident that the white men in those Southern States, by usurping and of the colored men, are exerting just double the political power of the white men in the Northern States.

I submit, my friends, that such a condition of affairs is extraordinary, unjust and derogatory to the manhood of the North. Even those who are vindictively opposed to negro suffrage will not deny that if Presidential electors are assigned to the South by reason of the negro population, that population ought to be permitted free suffrage in the election. To deny that clear proposition is to affirm that a Southern white man in the Gulf States is entitled to double the political power of a white man in the Northern States. It is to affirm that a Confederate soldier shall wield twice the influence in the nation that a Union Soldier can, and that a perpetual and constantly increasing superiority shall be conceded to the Southern white man in the government of the Union. If that be quietly conceded in this generation, it will harden into custom, until the badge of inferiority will attach to the Northern white man as odiously as ever Norman noble stamped upon Saxon churl.

This subject is of deep interest to the laboring men of the North. With the Southern Democracy triumphant in their States and the nation, the negro will be compelled to work for just such wages as the whites may decree—wages which will amount, as did the supplies of the slaves, to a bare subsistance, equal to cash perhaps of thirty-five cents per day if averaged over the entire South. The white laborer in the North will soon feel the distinctive effect of this upon his own wages. The Republicans have clearly seen from the earliest days of reconstruction that wages in the South must be raised to a just recompense of the laborer, or wages in the North ruinously lowered, and the party have steadily worked for the former result. The reverse influence will now be set in motion, and that condition of affairs produced which years ago Mr. Lincoln warned the free laboring men of the North would prove hostile to their independence, and will inevitably lead to a

RUINOUS REDUCTION OF WAGES.

A mere difference in the color of the skin will not suffice to maintain an entirely different standard of wages in contiguous and adjacent States, and the voluntary will have to yield to the involuntary. So completely have the colored men in the south been already deprived by the Democratic party of their constitutional and legal rights as citizens of the United States, that they regard the advent of the party to national power as the signal for their reinslavement, and are affrighted because they think all legal protection for them is gone. Few persons in the North realize how completely the chiefs of the rebellion wield the political power which has triumphed in the late election.

It is a portentous fact, that the Democratic Senators who come from the States of the late Confederacy all—and I mean all, without a single exception all personally participated in the rebellion against the national government. It is a still more significant fact that in these States no man who was loyal to the Union, no matter how strong a Democrat he may be to-day, has the slightest chance for political promotion. The one great avenue to honor in that section is the record of zealous service in the war against the government. It is certainly an astounding fact that the section in which friendship for the Union in the day of its trial and agony is still a political disqualification, should be called now to rule over the Union. All this takes place during the life time of the generation that fought the war, and elevates to practical command of the American Government the identical men who organized for its destruction and plunged us into the bloodiest contest of modern times.

I have spoken of the South as placed by the late election in possession of the Government, and I mean all that my words imply. The South furnished nearly three-fourths of the electoral votes that defeated the Republican party, and they will step to the command of the Democrats as unchallenged and as unrestrained as they held the same position for thirty years before the war. Gentlemen, there can not be political inequality among the citizens of a free republic. There cannot be a minority of white men in the South ruling a majority of white men in the North. Patriotism, self-respect, pride, protection for person and safety for country, all cry out against it. The very thought of it stirs the blood of men who inherit equality from the Pilgrims who first stood on Plymouth Rock and from liberty-loving patriots who came to the Delaware with William Penn. It becomes the primal question of American manhood; it demands a hearing and a settlement, and that settlement will vindicate the equality of American citizens in all personal and civil rights. It will at least establish the equality of white men under the national government and will give to Northern men who fought to preserve the union, as large a voice in its government as may be exercised by the Southern men who fought to destroy the union.

The contest just closed utterly dwarfs the fortunes and fates of candidates, whether successful or unsuccessful.

Purposely—I may say instinctively—I have discussed the issues and consequences of that contest without the remotest reference to the gentleman who is elevated to the Presidency. Toward him personally I have no cause for the slightest ill-will, and it is with cordiality I express the wish that his official career may prove gratifying to himself and beneficial to the country, and that his administration may overcome the embarrassments which the peculiar source of its power imposes on it from the hour of its birth.

The speech was continually interrupted with applause. At the conclusion Mr. Blaine invited the crowd into his house and held an informal reception.

Since my last list of personals, the following are some of the visitors, Misses Emma and Sallie Langley: Ricedale; Mrs. J. T. Miller, Hartford; Mrs. Nellie Thomas, Bowling Green; Mrs. Louis Johnson, Auburn, and Mrs. W. V. Johnson and daughter, Hopewell.

Mrs. Columbus Taylor died on the —inst., at her home near Hopewell; and on the 4th inst., Mr. Horace Bowen died at his son-in-law's, S. J. Robertson. Also on the 18th inst., Mrs. Ross Williams, of this place, died. The cruel work of death ever goes on, sparing neither the good nor young.

Born, to the wife of M. L. Tinsley, on the 6th inst., a son. Dr. Layton calls him Cleveland.

One of the greatest revivals in this country for years, has just closed at the Pond Run church. The meetings were conducted by Dr. Neal, of Cromwell Ky. There were about 65 conversions and about 35 baptised. The latter ceremony took place in Green river, near Torrence's old mill site.

Mr. John Jackson has drawn one-fourth of a $1,000 prize in the Louisiana Lottery. But reader, take "Suggs'" advice and never be tempted to buy a ticket in a lottery.

Joe Daniels still refuses to believe that "me and Jim's beat." He says 20 counties in New York are not heard from, but a month of killing doubt is telling on him. His face has grown so long, the barber asks him a dollar for a shave. He swears by the Toledo Blade.

The drummers tell me that it is distressing to see the weary people everywhere. The Democrats are all broken down ratifying—the Republicans all broken up with defeat.

Thrace thought Socrates ought to give Democritus hellebore when he stood barefooted in the haven and laughed at their follies like a madman. It was this potion that cured Hercules. Perhaps if the people of Augusta, Maine, would soak Blaine's head and drench him with hellebore, it would prevent another paroxysm like that of the other night. "Thou art out of thy little wit," O Plumed Knight, and must needs, like Tantalus, drink hellebore and that without mixture."

Forty years ago the "Old Zip Coon," then a Whig, sat on a rail in sorrow, while the Democratic rooster in clarion notes heralded victory. History will repeat itself. Sojdumorically,

Mrs. D. A. Barnes returned Sunday from a week's visit to her sister, Mrs. Tinsley, at rockport.

O. M. Shultz, in a game of base ball, the other day, fell and seriously hurt himself.

The election is over at last, and all who are not pleased with the result, will be, I think, when the new machine gets fairly at work.

The farmers are about done gathering corn. Some are already stripping tobacco.

Last Saturday night the Adelphian Literary Society here elected the following officers: E. P. Neal, president; Emerson Rogers, vice-president; J. B. Wilson, secretary; and treasurer; R. L. Reid, critic, and E. T. Miller, marshal. Come over, Mr Editor, and hear oratory unequalled since the days of the Giants. BELLE.

Millwood.

The excitement of election is over and everyone has settled down to the usual routine of business. Still, when the election of Cleveland and Hendricks is an assured fact, we yet feel a thrill of exultation at our splendid victory against such odds, and stand in the light of God's glorious sunshine as free men once again, untrammeled by the thought that we are merely aliens in the land we love, abiding here by sufferance, and having nothing in common with the Northern portions of this great Republic. But this is past, and in our pride we say, "behold our country again united, in fact, as well as fancy," while a citizen of the Commonwealth of Kentucky feels that he is, politically, in every respect the peer of the men of Michigan or Iowa. If the triumph of November the 4th has this tendency, then let us shout for all time to come, Viva la Democracy!

Perhaps the best pleased man in Grayson county over the result of the election is Mr. H. K. Wells, of Millwood. When the bogus Associated Press dispatches were making the outlook gloomy for us all, he never lost faith in the final result, but kept reiterating the assertion that they were bogus, and that Cleveland was elected in spite of everything.

In sinking a well on the property of Mr. W. Leech, at Millwood, the workmen struck a four-foot vein of black sand rock of a strange nature; when heat is applied to the rock it generates a gas that burns with the brilliancy of an electric light, and the residue after the gas has burned out has all the properties and appearance of the finest emery. Knowing ones say that it indicates oil at no great distance below the rock, but I could not express an opinion.

Mr. L. E. Green, at one time member of the Legislature for Grayson county, met with a serious accident a few days since. While helping to cover a barn, his footing gave way and he was precipitated a distance of 15 feet, injuring himself internally but breaking no bones. It is feared that his injuries may prove fatal, as at this writing he is in a very critical condition.

Flux has been getting in its work in this country of late. Melvin Bratcher, living within three miles of this place, has had the misfortune to lose his wife and three of his children by the dread disease, while several other children in the vicinity have died from its effects.

Messrs. H. K. Wells and Taylor Layman have erected a large steam saw and grist mill at this point, and will be ready for business next week.

Mr. Chris. Orr, who runs a large saw mill some three miles from here, has, within the last month, shipped over 200,000 feet of splendid poplar lumber. and at the present time has upwards of 500,000 feet stacked alongside the railroad at this place.

Now that the stave business is played out, on account of scarcity of timber, our business men must begin to develop other sources of wealth, and the inexhaustible deposits of coal, iron and fireclay that underlie this whole country offer inducements that should be taken advantage of.

Mr. Frank Gore, who has been in Kansas and the Indian Territory in the cattle-herding business, returned last Tuesday. Frank's experience of cowboy life does not pan out with the rose tints of the average dime novel on the subject. He pronounces it a hard life, and is well pleased to be once again among the hills of Grayson.

The newsboy on the C., O. & S. W. railroad tells me he has sold more newspapers at Millwood during the Presidential excitement than at any other station between Louisville and Paducah. This speaks well for the intelligence of our people.

Farmers should more fully appreciate the efforts of the Signal Service Bureau in furnishing to each telegraph office warnings of coming storms and changes of weather especially for their benefit. The present cold weather was reported at our office fully 24 hours before it made its appearance.

The negroes around here have accepted the inevitable, and are half persuaded that they will not again be driven into slavery.

PERSONALITIES.

Misses Lizzie English and Katie Bethel, two young ladies of Cecilia, came down to attend the hop Saturday night last.

Miss Lula McCall, of Leitchfield, was down on a visit to the family of Mr. Samuel Hackley, last week, and left for home Monday evening.

Mr. Tom Geohegan and wife, of Louisville, are paying a visit to the family of Mr. H. K. Wells. Tom has ended a life of single blessedness, and taken unto himself a charming young wife. The bay of the hounds and the crack of the rifle have nearly lost their accustomed music to his ears, and soon the joys of domestic life will have weaned him from the excitement of a hunter's life and changed the Nimrod into a staid family man. May peace and prosperity follow in their footsteps, and may Allah cause their shadows to never grow less.

Editor Herald:

Corn gathering is progressing well. The crop is rather light. Corn is worth 50c per bushel without picking.

Tobacco moving. Quite a quantity has been sold and some delivered. Prices are liberal, ranging from 5 to 6 cents per pound. J. D. Hocker sold his crop last Tuesday morning, and by Friday at noon had stripped and delivered nearly 3000 pounds, price 6 cents round.

J Mason Taylor has purchased and moved to the farm owned by J. Pendleton Austin. Mr. Austin contemplates going West.

Mr. John S. Miller, of McHenry, died at his home on Thursday last, and was buried at the cemetery on Uncle Andrew Miller's farm on Friday. Mr. Miller had lost his eyes some years ago, but was apparently sound otherwise until a few days before his death.

Our young friend, W. J. Berry, Jr., is the happiest man in these parts. He says the election is nothing to him, for he thinks he has as fine a boy at his house as there is in all these regions. He thinks of naming him Hendricks.

Messrs. Hughes and Bradley and Miss Lizzie Hughes, of Hanlin county, have been visiting the family of J. R. Hughes, of this place, for several days past.

The young people had a musical entertainment at Mr. P. M. Hocker's last Saturday night, to which all the young people of this place turned out.

The election has ceased to be the topic of discussion here, but Mr. Blaine's speech, delivered at his home in Augusta, a few nights ago, is now very generally discussed. It is condemned by Democrats and Republicans alike as being unworthy of a great man. Such a speech could not emanate from a great man. A great man has some considerations above self, some patriotism above party, some thoughts broader than selfish ambition. This speech sounds very much like the whines of a whipped cur. It is incendiary in its spirit, and is in direct opposition to the spirit of his letter of acceptance. We did have some admiration for Mr. Blaine, notwithstanding his ultra politics, but this speech convinces us that we were mistaken in the man, and that those who have known him best and refused to support him though their party's nominee, were right, and acted from a high sense of patriotism. We believe the Republican party did a patriotic thing when they refused to nominate Gen. Grant for a third term, and by that act rebuked his wicked ambition. We believe that a great number of them have again risen to a patriotic standpoint, above party, in refusing to support Mr. Blaine. By this we do not mean that men did not vote for him through patriotic motives, for we recognize the rank and file of all parties as honest, patriotic and true, and we believe the masses voted for their party leaders through patriotic motives.

We believe the sooner these ambitious demagogues in all parties are laid upon the shelf the better for the country.

The times call for a higher order of politicians, a purer element in patriotism. We cannot afford, either as Democrats or Republicans, to indulge in extreme and bitter feelings. There is a middle ground. There is a need of wise and conservative statesmanship. Much depends on wisdom, patriotism and good sense. RURAL.

Business in this vicinity is pretty lively. People are gathering corn, making lumber and bucking staves

Mr. Pardon W. Tabor, who has had a long and severe attack of typhoid, is improving and is able now to sit up.

Mrs. Coleman Daniel is quite sick with typhoid and at this writing is no better.

There has been great excitement here over the Presidental election.

The school is progressing here finely. We have a debating society which meets every Thursday night, Messrs F. M. Petty, J. H. Thomas, J. M. Ragland R. H. Martin, are the leading speakers.

Woman suffrage doesn't take worth a cent up here, we have tried it twice and it was beaten both times. St. John is right, but Mrs. Lockwood is just a little off, I believe.

Our subject for last night was: Resolved that the "Art of man is more attractive to the human eye than the works of nature." The decision was given in behalf of the affirmative. We had a large and merry crowd out. who were so full of election fun that some almost forgot how to behave themselves. There are some people who like to be noticed wherever they go, if it is even at their own expense.

Our young friend Tom Barrell has returned home.

Robert Daniel and Miss Lue Murphy, living near White Oak, have been quite sick with fever, but are better.

The school at White Oak, conducted by Miss Debbie Raley, is proving to be a success. She also has a literary and debating society organization.

Mr. McDaniel, the present owner of Wilson's Mill, has just put in a new dam and is anxiously awaiting water, to commence grinding

The Democrats had a jubilee at Tom Daniel's shop last Saturday night, and some of the same crew aim to swell the number at Hartford to-night. The HERALD is always a welcome visitor. May it always have continued success.

The Hunter Sifter Manufacturing Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, want a good agent in this county. Their goods sell fast, agents make two to six dollars per day. Write for circulars.

Our young friend, John Jackson, of Rockport, left Saturday for Dixie. He will take in the Lone Star State, in which he will probably locate. We wish him a pleasant and profitable trip.

While in Rockport last week we were the guest of the Davis House. This hotel has recently opened under its present management. Mr. E. W. Davis, an experienced hotel-keeper is manager, which insures hospitality and comfort to the travelling public. When you visit Rockport, give this house a call.

Mr. J. Warren Barnett left with us yesterday, two samples of his corn. One sample of the corn is the White Surprise, which matures in 90 days. The other sample is from seed secured from W. B. Render, of this place. Mr. Barnett will have seed of this corn for sale next spring. The corn is the finest we have seen. Call and see it.

Mrs. H. C. Shaft has our sincere thanks for a beautiful and dainty remembrance—a wall-pocket. On the front is carved, in exquisite design, an angel. It is finished at the top with a small bracket, large enough to hold a small vase of flowers. The superior workmanship of this handsome ornament was executed by Mr. H. C. Shaft, foreman of this office.

The dinner given by the ladies Monday and Tuesday, for the benefit of the Methodist church, was, as usual with Hartford ladies, quite a success. The fare was varied and delicious, and largely patronized by those attending court. The receipts were very satisfactory. In behalf of the ladies we extend thanks to those patronizing them. We would like to speak more of this occasion, but time and space forbid.

A gentleman of Goodwater, Ala., writes: "My wife was down so long, I do not know what all she has taken. I had doctors attending her and they failed to relieve her; so I got a bottle of your Female Regulator, and she used it, and has been mending ever since. She can now go about the house and do her work, and we know it to be a very valuable medicine."

Fires are occurring daily and nightly. A happy home to-day is perhaps rendered desolate to-morrow. Then everybody should protect themselves and families from such sad calamities, and the best way to do this is to come to this office and take an insurance policy.

The danger of incidental harm to the community, or to certain classes of people, from the increased use of machinery, the extension of public works, etc., is greatly diminished when those who make the laws, and especially those whose duty it is to interpret them, recognize that law is a progressive science; that it is a means, not an end; that when a state of things arises for which there is no precedent, a new precedent must be made. How the most enlightened jurists hold this principle constantly in view, and how the common as well as the statute law is thus made to keep pace with the general advance of civilization, is admirably set forth in the leading article in the North American Review for December, "Labor and Capital before the Law," by Judge T. M. Cooley, of Michigan. To the same number, William K. Ackerman contributes some suggestive "Notes on Railway Management," Dr. Schliemann tells what he found in his excavations of the ruins of Tiryns, in Southern Greece, and Principal Shairp supplements his scholarly article on "Friendship in Ancient Poetry" with one on "Friendship in English Poetry." The other articles in the number are, "The British House of Lords," by George Ticknor Curtis, and "Responsibility for State Roguery," by John F. Hume.

We visited the flourishing little city of Rockport, Ky., last week, and found everything moving on smoothly. We called at the wholesale and retail establishment of Messrs. Reid, Haden & Co., and found the proprietors all happy and busy. Further down we stepped into the dry goods house of Jackson & Son, where we met our handsome young friend, Mr. John T. Jackson, and also our old friend, Judge Tol Robertson, who is assisting in the manipulation of the yard stick in that house. A few doors below we called in to see the James boys, who are closing out their large stock at cost with the view of changing business. Still lower down Main street we came to the dry goods and clothing store of T. Bentley & Co., where we had the pleasure of meeting our friend, Mr. Wallace D. Hamilton, who has recently accepted a position as general salesman. This house was chuck full of goods. Among other merchants we met were Messrs. John Doherty and Joe Daniels. Rockport is truly a "city set on a hill, for its light is seen afar off."

Destructive Fire.

The residence of Mr. F. M. Heverin, about five miles east of town caught fire about midnight last Wednesday, burning his residence and all the household furniture and his barn, including corn, hay, wagon harness, hay-rake &c. Mr. Heverin and family were absent from home and the fire was not discovered in time to save anything. We understand that Mr. Heverin had some insurance, but did not learn how much.

The tables will be furnished at all times by the best the market affords, all combining to make this one of the best $1.00 Houses in the Green River country. When you visit Rockport, dont fail to give this House a call.

Capt. Sam. E. Hill's Lecture Before the Beaver Dam School.

The series of lectures inaugurated by Prof. O'Flaherty for the benefit of the school at Beaver Dam is attracting attention and inspiring well deserved confidence and interest, and in fact is a stir in the right direction, lifting the common schools from the slough of enervating monotony.

Capt. Hill appeared according to announcement and delivered a lecture, the subject being. "The Civilization of England and America." Those who know Mr. Hill will not be surprised to learn that his lecture was entertaining and instructive.

On the present occasion he perhaps, excelled himself; his style throughout was chaste and fluent. His presentation of the subject had the rapt attention of his auditors from first to last, and at the conclusion was greeted with rounds of applause.

Music, declamations, recitations and spelling followed.

The young ladies and gentlemen of the school acquitted themselves very creditably.

Hon. R. P. Hocker, asked permission to make a remark or two, and to the surprise and pleasure of all present moved that Prof. O'Flaherty be requested to deliver the next lecture. The motion was unanimously carried. We expect to hear something new from the professor.

The people of Beaver Dam should feel proud of the success of their school, and of the prominence which the weekly exercises give that institution and the place itself.

MARRIAGES.

HOWEY-MOORMAN.—At the residence of the bride's brother-in-law, Mr. R. W. Batsel, in South Carrollton, Ky., Wednesday evening, Nov. 12th, 1884, by Rev. Mr. Rushing, Mr. S. F. Howey, of Hamilton, Ohio county, and Miss Mary C. Moorman, of Muhlenberg county. The happy couple, after a brief tour to Louisville and other points, returned to Hamilton, where Mr. Howey is engaged with the Central Coal and Iron Company. May they live so as to be able to look back and exclaim in the language of the poet, "We've climbed the hill together."

Obituary.

Died, two miles Southeast of Fordsville, at 11 o'clock A. M., Thursday, November 14th, 1884, of consumption, Mrs. Eliza Jane Spears, widow of Franklin A. Spears and daughter of Johnathan I. and Sarah J. Miles, in the 40th year of her age. She was born near Pattieville, in this county, February 27th, 1844. She was married in October, 1869. Her husband died about two years after their marriage leaving her with the care of an infant daughter now in her 14th year.

Mrs. Spears had been a member of the Baptist church for many years, and at the time of her death her church membership was with the Baptist church at Mt. Pleasant, Fordsville.

At 12 o'clock M., Saturday, the 15th inst., she was laid in the family row in the graveyard of her grand-father, Jas. W. Matthews, on the farm now owned by Lee Grant, near Pattieville.

Jane, as she was called, was a good woman, and her industry and friendly disposition had won for her the esteem of all who knew her. FORBES.

Something New.

We are under obligations to the Hunter Sifter Manufacturing Company, of Cincinnati, for an elegantly bound volume of the Hunter Sifter Cook Book, just out. This firm manufactures Kitchen Specialties, one of which The Hunter Sifter, is probably the most popular utensil ever invented, there are millions of them in use The Cyclone Egg Beater is another; their latest however is The Safety Hollow Ware, which bids fair to rival the Sifter. Their goods are introduced by agents, and they want an agent in every county in the United States. As they have no agent in this county, we would advise some of our readers, who are out of employment, to write for circulars and secure an agency. Their agents are making two to six dollars per day, which is a salary not easily obtained these hard times.

A Strange Disease.

For the past two weeks a terrible disease has been raging in the counties of Mercer and McDowell, West Virginia; Lee, Russell, Wise and Buchanan, Virginia; and Harlan and Floyd, Kentucky. An eye-witness from that section says the scenes he saw were beyond description. For nearly 3 months no rain had fallen. The grass had burned up, leaves had fallen from whole forests, and crops were a total failure. Nearly every creek, spring and well was dry. In the town of Mt. Pleasant but one well contains water. The citizens of Saltville carry water nearly two miles.

At least 1000 persons in a population not exceeding 15000, have died. Cattle and live stock by hundreds have died, and their rotting carcasses fill the air with a horrible stench. The disease is similar in man and beast. It is a bloody flux. Death ensues quickly. The country is extremely rough, and most of the people live in cabins up in the mountain hollows Many are remote from neighbors, and whole families die alone and are left unburied.

Food is about exhausted, and the people are living on barks and nuts. Water is so scarce that in many places the blood of animals is used to cook their food. Blood is also freely drunk. Gladesville, Ky., is almost depopulated, and a graveyard is all that remains of Lebanon, West Va.

The immediate cause of the disease is supposed to be the presence of a great quantity of mineral matter in the water, caused by the long drought and evaporation. Aid is greatly needed.

Haynesville Happenings.

Nov. 23d, 1884.

Editor Herald

Farmers are availing themselves of the beautiful weather by gathering their corn, which is below an average in quantity.

Everybody and everything is jubilant since the election. Every Democrat has donned "A Hurrah for Cleveland and Hendricks" expression and goes about his business with renewed energy.

A protracted meeting has just closed at the Baptist church, and the baptising of twenty-eight converts into her fellowship, by the Rev. B. F. Jenkins, pastor, occurred at the mill pond, on last Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Bro. Jenkins greatly endeared himself to his brethern here by his devotion to the cause in our community. He was assisted in his labors by Rev. C. B. Phillips, who did some very efficient work. The church is greatly revived and all agree that the meeting was in every way a success.

Mr. Joe F. Morrison has obtained a clerkship in the dry goods store of Stinnett & May, and will soon become an efficient salesman.

Mrs. Julia Owen, of Owensboro, is making an extended visit here with relatives.

Misses Hattie Mattingly and Sallie Hale, in company with Messrs. Oscar Haynes and Iva Ware, of Whitesville, paid us a flying visit on last Sunday. We "Hale" them with delight and only regret they could not stay longer.

Miss Rosa Bush, an estimable and accomplished young lady, of Tunnell Hill, Hardin county, Ky., is paying a visit to the family of Dr. S. A. Gillespie.

Mr. Gip Berry, the reliable and popular salesman of G. H. McAlpin & Co., wholesale dry goods and notions, Cincinnati, Ohio, paid us a visit in the interest of his firm this week. Gip was brimful of Presidential patriotism. We always welcome him with great delight and look forward with pleasure to the time of his coming.

Mr. C. B. Tate, of the old established hat house of Torian, Barbour & Co., Evansville, Ind., called to see us this week.

Mr. Jas. L. Stinnett, of Whitesville, is among us to-day, in his tobacco interest. CHALKAC.

Cobden, Ill.

November 14th, 1884.

Editor Herald:

We have met the enemy and they are ours. Old Union county has rolled up over 1000 majority for the Democrat ticket and sent 3 Democratic members to the Legislature; and our Legislature, too, is Democratic, and John Logan will be placed on the retired list, and we will have a rest from him for a while anyhow.

The poor old Republican party! Let every sympathetic heart throb in sadness for this the worst disaster of its life. How can it bear defeat and see the white plume of J. G. Blaine trail in the dust? It had a great tumble. But it was necessary. A new master was needed at the helm; the old one was thought unequal to the occasion.

Democracy has again prevailed, and the splendor of its achievments will live on even when its candidates are sunk into oblivion.

The canvass is over and the contest won, and the Democracy has proved itself a heritage of the people. The candidacy of Grover Cleveland can not be eclipsed by any other in American history. No words bear a greater significance of the true greatness of the man than "Tell the Truth"; they showed exactly his character.

The Republicans cry fraud. If there ever was a party of fraud it is the Republican. I saw it attempted here. All through the day we found tickets headed 'Democratic' with the names of the Republican electors printed on them. They had their stickers and tissue ballots; they had negroes here that were never seen in the town before and that were voted by affidavit. For $40 a railroad conductor agreed to bring in 40 of them from Cairo. And yet they cry fraud. So mean and evident were the tricks they practiced that many of the honest and thinking Republicans voted with the Democrats.

But so completely have we overwhelmed them that they stand dumbfounded and with bated breath, and know not which way to turn, and seem utterly hopeless.

Now while we wait the consummation of our victory, let us hope the Republican party will take manly, if hardly, its sad calamity.

Resolved, By the Cleveland and Hendricks Club, of Sulphur Springs, Ohio county, Kentucky, that we hail with inexpressible joy, the election of the Hon. Grover Cleveland as the next President of the United States, and we emphatically affirm our unbounded faith in his ability, integrity and incorruptible patriotism, believing, that in the discharge of the duties of the exalted office to which he has been elevated by the free will of the American people, he will know no North, no South, no East, no West, but his whole country, one and indivisible.

Resolved, That we greet with satisfaction, the second election of Hon T. A. Hendricks to the Vice Presidency of the United States We regard him as a man whom neither danger can appall nor flattery seduce—an honor to his party, to his country and to his race, and a worthy model for the emulation of the noble and aspiring Youth of our country.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Club are hereby tendered to the Hartford HERALD, which, under the management and inspiration of Col. Jno. P. A Single Fact

Is Worth a Ship-Load of Argument.

Cartersville, Ga.

This will certify that two members of my immediate family, after having suffered for many years from menstrual irregularity, and having been treated without benefit by various medical doctors, were at length completely cured by one bottle of Dr J Bradfield's Female Regulator. Its effect on such cases is truly wonderful, and well may the remedy be called "Woman's Best Friend."

Yours respectfully,
JAMES W STRANGE.

ENTIRE AND ABSOLUTE SUCCESS.

Maj John C Whitner, of Atlanta, well and favorably known all over the United States as a General Insurance Agent, says: "I used this remedy before the war on a large plantation in a great number of cases, always with absolute success."

Dr. J. Davis, of Milltown, Ala, writes: "Have used Bradfield's Regulator extensively in my practice with entire success. It is not a specific. It is, to my opinion, the best known remedy for the diseases for which it is recommended.

A lady in Bonham, Texas, writes: "I have been using your Female Regulator for several weeks and with great benefit. My case is of long standing, and has baffled many physicians. I have tried every medicine I could hear of, but the Regulator is the only one that has ever relieved my sufferings."

Notasulga, Ala.

Dr J Bradfield's Female Regulator has been thoroughly tested by me in a great variety of cases, and I am fully convinced that it is unrivaled for that class of diseases which it claims to cure. J T HUSS, M D.

SAMARITAN NEVER FAILS. NERVINE

"You claim too much for SAMARITAN NERVINE," says a skeptic. "How can one medicine be a specific for Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Rheumatism, Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, and fifty other complaints?" We claim it a specific, simply, because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nervine, Resolvent, Alterative and Laxative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It's known world wide as

THE GREAT NERVE CONQUEROR

It quiets and composes the patient—not by the introduction of opiates and drastic cathartics, but by the restoration of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.

To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVINE is invaluable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system. $1.50. Sold by all Druggists.

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL CO.

Tells What He Knows of

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL CURE.

OFFICE OF THE COURIER JOURNAL, LOUISVILLE.
Dr. Wintersmith,

SIR: I waive a rule I have observed for many years, the value of your remedy prompting me to say, in reply to your request, what I know of your Chill Cure. The private assurances of its efficacy I had, and the good results of its effects I had observed on Mr. R. W. Meredith, who for more than fifteen years, has been foreman of my office, induced me to test it in my family. The results have been entirely satisfactory. The first case was of two years' standing, in which I believe every common remedy had been tried with temporary relief—the chills returning periodically and seemingly with increased severity. Your cure broke them at once, and there has been no recurrence of them for more than six months. The other case was of a milder form, and yielded more readily to other remedies; but the chills would return at intervals until your medicine was used, since which time, now several months they have entirely disappeared. From the opportunity I have had to judge, I do not hesitate to express my belief that your Chill Cure is a valuable specific, and performs all you promise for it. Very respectfully,
